

Being a change agent

The reasons that Stefan chose Proaction are very simple: inspiring values, an enjoyable work environment, and numerous personal and professional challenges.

Having long been more attracted to numbers and mathematics than to the written word, Stefan quickly turned to the domain of finance. After obtaining his degree, he lived in Ireland for a while to perfect his English, then returned to France and waited for his Canadian work visa.

Initially hired by Proaction on a temporary basis, Stefan was very happy to have been offered a position as a permanent employee. “Since then, my role has been evolving on a monthly basis in line with company needs and my skills.”

SEIZING EACH OPPORTUNITY

Learning new things each day and being faced with numerous challenges make Proaction the ideal organization for anyone looking for a stimulating, motivating work environment. “You have to seize each opportunity, learn to find them, and not hesitate to question yourself about your work.”

According to him, Proaction’s success depends on a different approach than that of traditional consulting firms. It is an approach based on personalized training and coaching. “All the participants want to be high-performing employees. That is the key to success!”

ALWAYS CHALLENGING YOURSELF

Stefan believes that challenging yourself to go further is the defining element of Proaction’s corporate culture. This means encouraging and accompanying each individual to become creative and to meet and exceed personal goals in any daily work task.

He was able to put this into practice following a change in accounting software, which inspired him to review processes and create new tools to respond to the various needs of the growing company. “It’s very enriching to work on a project of this scope, because you have to know how to reassess yourself to find the best solution.”

BALANCING WORK AND LEISURE

At Proaction, as in sports, the idea of team spirit is key in terms of both performance and studying challenges. Accordingly, Stefan finds the time to engage in physical activity several times a week. In addition, several of his soccer teammates are also his work colleagues! Aside from practicing sports, he is also a volunteer at the SPCA and fosters cats.

His primary focus over the next few years is to become a permanent residence. “Buying a place and visiting the United States won’t be far behind!”

STEFAN LE CORNEC
Accounting technician

AN ADVICE ON HOW TO SUCCEED AT PROACTION ?

“If you enjoy challenges and want to grow rapidly at the heart of an organization, Proaction will definitely meet your expectations.”

REINFORCED FOR
PRODUCTIVITY & STRENGTH